Castro's Secrets

Forced Induction Performance Tuning

A psychological thriller in the tradition of Patricia Highsmith about two couples caught in a web of conflicting passions while deep-sea diving off the beautiful Canary Islands In the late 1990s, Sven Fiedler and his girlfriend, Antje, left Germany for the island of Lanzarote, rejecting what Sven considered a vulgar culture of materialism and judgment. The young couple set up a diving service catering to tourists eager to bask in the warm sunshine and explore the silent, gleaming marine paradise that makes this otherwise barren volcanic island such a remarkable retreat. Sven's approach was simple: take the mechanics of diving seriously, instruct his clients clearly, and stay out of their personal business as best he can. And life on the island goes smoothly until two German tourists--Jola von der Pahlen, a daytime soap star on the verge of cinematic success, and Theo Hast, a stalled novelist--engage Sven for a high-priced, intensive two-week diving experience. Staying in a guest house on Sven and Antje's property, the two visitors and their hosts quickly become embroiled in a tangle of jealousy and suspicion. Sven is struck by Jola's beauty, her evident wealth, and her apparently volatile relationship with the much older Theo. Theo quickly leaps to the conclusion that Sven and Jola are having an affair, but, oddly, he seems to facilitate it rather than trying to intervene. Antje, looking on, grows increasingly wary of these particular clients. As the point of view shifts from one character to the next, the reader is constantly kept guessing about who knows what, and, more important, who is telling the truth. A brutal game of delusion, temptation, and manipulation plays out, pointing toward a violent end. But a quiet one, down in the underwater world beneath the waves.

Journeys in Time

- THE GIRL WITH THE RED RIBBON -This 421 page novel was written by the award winning British author PF Farraday. An enthraling and enchanting story it follows a dark and mysterious secret of the rich Barrington Family and the Earl of Leicester whom in 1533 was cursed by the fate of a five hundred year old Chinese painting 'The Girl with the Red Ribbon'.

}}}}}}}}}} THE PLOT }}}}In 2014, a fresh-faced and recently graduated historian takes on his first job to purchase an old but unknown painting on behalf of the National Trust. Andy, the geeky intern is sent to Christie's auction house in New York to bid on the tattered painting of 'The Poor Chinese Girl', which once belonged to a wealthy noble family in Leicestershire, England. After being outbid by a secret buyer for a cool $5.5m, the puzzled graduate begins to dig deeper into the story behind the painting to discover why the artifact is so highly sought after. The answer lies in a dark secret documented in the archives of the highly-regarded rich Barrington family. In 1922, the Earl of Leicester and his wife died in a tragic car accident. Their only surviving son William Henry Barrington, the 12th Earl, was just thirteen years old when he inherited the estate, its priceless possessions and a large fortune. Lonely and grief stricken in the enormous castle, he begins to hear strange whisperings and noises coming from the cellar. One night young William throws on his dressing gown and slippers and by candlelight he slowly makes his way down old winding the stone stairs to the cellar. A dark place and creepy place indeed the tiptoes his way through a maze of doors until he finds one marked 'Keep out'. The noise ceases as he enters and finds himself standing before a dusty old painting from 1533 which is covered by a grubby white bed sheet. Nervously and filled with dread and fear the boy steps forward and tears the dust cover down, revealing the 'Painting of 'THE GIRL WITH THE RED RIBBON'. He lifts his candle aloft and for some time just stands in awe at the beautiful and enigmatic girl. But as the moonlight slowly creeps through the tiny cellar window the image begins to change. Her eyes become angry - hard and as dark as coal. Suddenly the door slams shut and a demented cackle reverberates around the room as the girl's spirit peels away from the canvas and frantically flies around the room. Quickly, the earl throws the cover back over the painting, runs out the cellar back up the winding stone staircase and locks his bedroom door. He vows never to return to the room again. But it's too late, the spirit has been awakened. Thirty years on, and as the rich earl grows older and more reclusive he becomes tired of the world outside full of people always holding out their hand and his hypocritical socialite friends. He yearns for the answer to a simple question: 'what do we really need in this life to be happy?' He spends more and more time alone in his studying the world through a book and obsessing over the 1533 painting. For countless months he sit in his library looking through old books and digging into it's history when one day he finds a handwritten note hidden between the pages of an old dust manuscript. Earl Westland Barrington - the first earl of Leicester - tells of a very dark secret and declares in the note that he made a terrible mistake by bringing the painting to England. After a lot of thought and growing ever tired of his dull privileged life, the lonely and eccentric earl whom having never traveled outside of England decides take a long boat voyage half way around the world in an attempt to return her to China. His travels turn into an amazing journey as it takes him down a path of self-discovery, humility and spirituality. But little does the great earl know that the biggest discovery is yet to come. The simple painting of the poor Chinese girl holds the answer to his life-long soul-searching question.

The Due Process of Law

(Applause Books). It is hard to believe that over 25 years have passed since A Chorus Line first electrified a New York audience. The memories of the show's birth in 1975, not to mention those of its 15-year-life and poignant death, remain incandescent and not just because nothing so exciting has happened to the American musical since. For a generation of theater people and theatergoers, A Chorus Line was and is the touchstone that defines the glittering promise, more often realized in legend than in reality, of the Broadway way. This impressive book contains the complete book and lyrics of one of the longest running shows in Broadway history with a preface by Samuel Freedman, an introduction by Frank Rich and lots of photos from the stage production.

Why did the Maya build pyramids? Did Vikings really have horns on their helmets? Why did Christopher Columbus sail to America? Why did the Titanic sink? Why is the London Bridge in Arizona? Written in an upbeat manner, each answer is accompanied by either a photo or an illustration to show the reasons why. Of course, TIME For Kids goes beyond answering the question, and dips into the science or history
